OLDHAM TO TEST NEW DRY LAW

Court of Appeals Grants Writ of Prohibition Against Goodloe Trying Mat Lakes

The drastic new prohibition law enacted by the recent legislature is to have its constitutionality tested in the Court of Appeals before any trials are held under its provisions in Madison county.

County Judge John D. Goodloe was to have tried Mat Lakes here Thursday on a charge of having liquor in his possession. Attorney R. C. Oldham, representing Lakes, went before the Court of Appeals at Frankfort Tuesday, however, and secured a temporary writ of prohibition against Judge Goodloe trying the case. Judge Settle granted the temporary writ at Frankfort. Final hearing on the question of making the writ permanent will come before the court on April 11th.

SIAMESE TWINS BOTH NEAR DEATH'S DOOR

Operation May Be Resorted To Quickly In Effort To Save One If Other Succumbs

(By Associated Press)
Chicago, Mar. 29—Death still lurked in the shadows of the hospital room here today where lie Joseph and Rosa Blazek, Siamese twins. They continued virtually in an unconscious state. Joseph is entirely oblivious to her surroundings and Rosa is in a comatose condition. An operation to separate the sisters is entirely contingent on the death of one. Joseph is suffering with jaundice. Physicians say if on dies the other is doomed, unless an operation takes place, and that might not succeed.

Dr. Breakstone, chief of the surgical staff of the hospital, for two weeks has observed the patients with a view of being prepared to perform the emergency operation of separating the two should the contingency develop. Dr. Breakstone said: "It would be an experimental operation, of course, but I have examined the patients just as carefully as I could to eliminate as far as possible the element of chance."

"Each has separate respiratory and cardiac systems, but it would be necessary to construct a new lower stomach should the operation be performed. I have performed similar operations and it is absolutely the only chance of saving the life of Rosa should Joseph die."

Rosa Blazek, the stronger of the twins, is the mother of a perfectly normal 11-year-old boy whose father was killed during the World War. She faces the prospect of death with the courage of the Spartan mother of old.

Although she has lapsed into a comatose state, frequently in the last few days, in her waking moments she tenderly strokes the head of her failing sister and whispers words of sympathy.

She is aware of the fact that if her sister dies she has no hope of surviving, except through a successful operation, but when she is conscious she smiles blandly and attempts to comfort her little son, Franz, who weeps at the bedside of his stricken mother.

Here's A Lamb Crop

Five lambs were born to a ewe on the farm of Sam P. Todd, well known Red House farmer, a day or so ago and all are doing well. Usually where so many are born to a ewe, one or two are so weak that they do not survive long. Two of the lambs had to be transferred to another mother, however, as the large family overtaxed the capacity of the mother ewe.

COAL OIL PREVENTS DOGS FROM TRAILING

On account of coal oil scattered around, Mullikins bloodhounds from Lexington were unable to trail thieves who stole a 55-gallon galvanized iron tank from the farm of Shelby Burgin near Foxtown some time Monday night. The thieves had emptied the tank of its contents and carried it off bodily, leaving no clue. Mr. Burgin was determined to catch them if possible so had the dogs hurried over. Sheriff Elmer Deatherage and deputies went out to assist in the hunt, but the coal oil on the ground and evidently on the shoes of the midnight visitors, kept the dogs from making trail.

TICKETS TO LEGION CONVENTION PRIZES

In State-Wide Membership Campaign To Be Launched Beginning April 1

(By Associated Press)
Louisville, Ky., Mar. 28—Four round trip railroad tickets to the national convention of American Legion at New Orleans October 16-20, and a similar number to the state convention at Glasgow August 28, 29 and 30, will be awarded in the Legion membership campaign in Kentucky beginning April 1st and ending May 31st.

Announcement of the drive was made here today by S. S. Jones, State Adjutant, who outlined the manner in which the tickets will be awarded as follows:

The post finishing first will receive two tickets to New Orleans and two to Glasgow; one to New Orleans and one to Glasgow are second prize; one to New Orleans will be given the post finishing third, and for fourth place a ticket will be given to the state convention.

Memories of army days will be revived at the state convention, according to Mr. Jones. Many of the Legionnaires are expected to wear their uniforms to the meeting and those who so desire will be housed in a "barracks" which will be equipped with army bunks and other accoutrements of army camps. An immense tobacco warehouse will be converted into the barracks.

The date for the convention, which has been fixed for August 28, 29 and 30, was changed from August 24, 25 and 26. The Glasgow Post, Mr. Jones said, is making elaborate preparations for the Legionnaires and, in addition to other entertainment features, a trip to Mammoth Cave will be included.

No goal has been set for the two months' membership drive, according to Mr. Jones, who said the "sky is the limit." The winners will be determined by the highest percentage of former service men enrolled May 31 as compared with the possible membership in the county, as shown by figures in the hands of the State Historian.

ERNST ENDORSES ROBERT BURNAM

Washington Dispatch Settles All Question About New Postmaster For Richmond

All speculation over appointment of Richmond's new Postmaster appears to have been set at rest by a dispatch from Washington to the Lexington Herald Wednesday morning, which said:

Washington, Mar. 29—Everett Hayden today was recommended by Senator Richard P. Ernst to be postmaster at Brighton, Fayette county, Ky. Other recommendations include the following for postmaster: Robert R. Burnam, Jr., at Richmond, Madison county; Ernest H. Scott, at Normal, Boyd county; William J. Mandy, at LaGrange, Oldham county.

Announcement that Mr. Burnam's name had been sent in to the Senate for confirmation by the President is expected at any time. Encomiums upon this popular young business man and republican leader are superfluous. He is one of the best known leaders of his party in this part of Kentucky—a real fighter for his party and his friends, and always loyal and steadfast to their interests.

He fought for his country during the world war with the same devotion and fidelity that he has manifested in his other activities before and after the war. He served overseas and made a splendid record. When a republican administration came into power at Washington and a change in the postmastership here became certain through the vicissitudes of politics, Mr. Burnam received the endorsements of hundreds, perhaps thousands, of the best citizens of the community without regard to party lines. That he will make a good official is assured, his friends feel certain.

LITTLE THEATRE CLUB SCORES A REAL HIT

Remarkable Training and Talent In Historic Art Shown by Players in "Under Cover"

Playing to a S. R. O. house Monday night, March 27, with possibly a hundred patrons turned away because there was no room, The Little Theatre Club of the Normal School, scored its biggest hit in "Under Cover" since its organization more than a year ago during which time it has confined its activities to the one-act plays.

In making this departure in presentation of Roi Cooper Megrue's four act comedy drama, it was proven conclusively that the members of this organization are capable of holding their own in any part of the dramatic field. The play was under the direction of Miss Miller, head of the Expression Department, and responsible for the success of The Little Theatre Club, at the Normal School. The lighting, staging and all other arrangements were handled by different members of the club. The electrician William French Todd, stage manager, Thomas Green; and John Jayne, who made the scenic property, were responsible to great extent for the success of the night. Henry Arnold, the business manager, also carried the burden of advertising manager. The night was strictly a student night, the orchestra of eight pieces rendering an excellent program between the acts. The ushers were members of the club, many of whom had appeared in previous performances.

Under Cover was an excellent vehicle in which the cast was able to exploit its dramatic abilities. The thread of mystery, coupled with the interpretation of the difficult roles, heightened by the beauty of the scenes, proved highly pleasing. It is indeed fortunate and at the time a very rare thing for a company of players to find comedy, pathos, mystery, and beauty of lines combined in such a well distributed manner as they are in this play.

But the play is not the only thing. Had it not been for the fine work of Miss Dolly Pickels, a member of the senior class of the Model High School, Mr. Daily Dunaway, Miss Velinda Deatherage and Ray Foster, members of the junior class of the Normal School, there would have been lacking that greatest of all essentials—the interpretation of lines. Even these people could not have made the night the success that it was, if they had not received the steady backing that was given them by the other members of the cast.

Miss Dolly Pickels, as Ethel Cartwright, alto playing for the first time as a member of the Little Theatre Club, acquitted herself with enviable credit. She coupled with her rendering of the part, the embellishments of rare grace and beauty that mark personal attractiveness and gentle breeding which were demanded in the characterization of a part that exacted a discriminating delineation of the character of a beautiful society girl, called upon to display every power which such woman might possess in her dealings with a crook, whom she finally outwits and consigns to deserved punishment. Many tense moments were felt in which it seemed that the honor, the beauty and the faithfulness of Ethel would be of no avail against the tremendous odds which were constantly thrown in her way. But out of all of these, Miss Pickels succeeded in bringing herself, at the same time endearing herself more and more to her audience.

Miss Velinda Deatherage, in the part of Nora Rutledge, gave the necessary "pep" and go to the part that the author had intended for the lighter parts of the play. Her love-making, or rather her attempts to frustrate the love-making on the part of Monty Vaughn, read by Mr. Cowan Taylor, was superb. Laugh after laugh was given her on her lines and her original manner of interpretation.

Amy Cartwright was the part that was assigned to Mary Elizabeth Luxon, who had rather inconsequential lines, which at the same time necessitated the greater effort in their reading. This part was especially important in the Garden Seed at Gordon's. It unfolding of the plot, which succeeded in doing with native grace and sweet simplicity that the author undoubtedly intended. Ann Wallace, the deaf and dumb girl, in her chic costume and piquant air as a female crook, made her role all that might be desired. For the first time since she has been playing in the club, Sallie Gentry, was seen in a more serious part, having previously taken that of a comedy character. As Mrs. Harrington, wife of a millionaire, she gave great assistance in the setting of the plot.

FOUR DIE IN FIRE AT LEBANON JUNCTION

(By Associated Press)
Shepherdsville, Ky., Mar. 29—Harry Newman died today from burns received when the home of his father, James Newman, a farmer burned during the night near Lebanon Junction, making the total of fatalities four as a result of the fire. Newman and two sons, Walter and Charles, escaped. Newman's wife, his mother, Mrs. Ella Newman, 85, and Paul Spink, a young grandson, were burned to death. All were trapped in the second story of the home.

Among the men characters, Daily Dunaway, in the role of the crooked inspector of the New York Customs, played his part up to every expectation throughout the performance. Mr. Dunaway is the possessor of remarkable ability and many expressed the desire that they would be accorded the privilege of witnessing his work on future occasions. Playing the part of a difficult role, he succeeded in driving his lines home with exceptional force and ability.

Ray Foster as Steven Denby, secret service agent, sent to help unravel the mystery of frequent violations of the customs laws, swung into his lines in the latter part of the third act with excellent success. As a love maker he needs but little more practice, to class him with the immortals. Leslie Evans, in the role of Michael Harrington, the member of the "rich idle class," depicted his constant fight between love of pleasure and love of an eccentric wife in good style. As the persistent lover, with a jelly-fish backbone, Cowan Taylor, in the part of Monty Vaughn, rendered steady support to the cast.

As types of "honest policemen from force, and not habit," Wm. Crutcher and Dorland Coates, in the parts of James Duncan and Harry Gibbs, supplied much of the comedy element, which lightened many of the heavier scenes.

REVIEW OF Y. WORK FOR YEAR IS GIVEN

At Dinner Confer. 100 Guests At Glyndon—Boys and Girls Take Part

The dinner conference given by the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday evening at the Hotel Glyndon was a most delightful affair and thoroughly enjoyed by all in attendance. Covers were laid for 100 guests and the dining room was taxed to its utmost capacity. A group of boys from Camp Daniel Boone and a bevy of Camp Fire Girls added greatly to the pleasure of the evening. The Camp Fire Girls especially making a hit with their short snatches songs.

The splendid work of the "Y" and especially the statewide work for boys and girls that is being done by the "Y" was finely and most impressively portrayed by Mr. E. V. Donaldson with the help of a stereopticon. Among the interesting features pictured were scenes from the boys' and girls' camp at Camp Daniel Boone, Strawberry Camps, Mammoth Cave and Junior Club Camps. The total attendance at these camps last year of boys and girls was 3,500.

The cultural value of the "H. Y. Clubs" and the Girl Reserve High School Clubs organized in these camps were featured on the screen, their programs showing that their aim is to "create, maintain and extend a high standard of christian character."

The state-wide Bible contests was another interesting feature of the work of the "Y" that was presented. Sixty-three high schools participated in these contests last year and 2,915 boys were enrolled in these classes and there were 1,119 written examinations. There were 15 older boys' conferences held last year in which 153 towns were represented and 1794 boys were in attendance.

The work done in towns and cities where the "Y" has its local buildings, also showed a healthy growth. Eleven hundred and ninety-two general scholarships were given to ex-service men last year that opened the doors to them for college training.

One hundred and eighteen father and son banquets were held and 91 lectures given on sex hygiene that had an attendance of 15,580.

Following Mr. Donaldson's presentation of the work done among the boys, a Cochran, state secretary of the Y. W. C. A., at Lexington, gave a most interesting account of the statewide work that is being done by this splendid organization for the girls of Kentucky.

Dr. Will B. Campbell, president of the Wesleyan College at Winchester, made the closing address of the evening, pleading that we give more care and attention to the training and culture of the boys and girls of the state, in whom the real wealth of the state must be sought. The Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. are doing much to advance the welfare and the highest interests of the boys and girls of Kentucky, and these organizations deserve the good will and cordial sympathy and financial support of the people.
